Franklin County Holds Special Election Tomorrow

(Columbus) Franklin County holds a special election tomorrow with a single issue on the ballot, a 9.96 mill levy in the Groveport Madison Local School District.

Polls at 19 locations throughout the district will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Eligible voters can find their polling location here. More than 26,000 voters are eligible for this election.

Voters will need to show identification to cast a regular ballot. Forms accepted include a current Ohio driver license, government or military identification, utility bills with a current name and address or a government document with current name or address other than a document from the board of elections. Voters without identification may cast a provisional ballot by providing the last four digits of their Social Security number.

Unofficial results will be posted online at <http://vote.franklincountyohio.gov> after the polls close. The board of elections must certify results of this election by Aug. 28.
